From the President...

Spring greetings members and friends!

Many landmark anniversaries are being celebrated this year – several at the national level having ties to Wyoming’s history. The first of these is the 50th anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA). With my research focusing on structures that have been lost, I thought it important to share with you why this significant legislation should be celebrated.

Before the NHPA came the Historic Sites Act (HAS) which became law on August 21, 1935. With this act, a national policy was established “to preserve for public use historic sites, buildings, and objects of national significance for the inspiration and benefit of the people of the United States.” Intended to increase the preservation powers of the National Park Service, the HSA enumerated a number of powers and responsibilities. Among them: collection and preservation of drawings, plans, photographs and other data of historic and archaeological sites, buildings and objects; conduct a survey of historic and archaeological sites, buildings, and objects for the purpose of determining which possess exception value; conduct research to obtain accurate historic and archaeological information related to those significant sites, buildings, and objects; “restore, reconstruct, rehabilitate, preserve, and maintain historic or prehistoric sites, buildings, objects and properties of national historical or archaeology significance and where deemed desirable, establish and maintain museums”; and erect and maintain tablets to mark or commemorate historic or prehistoric places and events of national significance.

According to a 2014 article in History News, “Fifty Years of the National Historic Preservation Act,” even with this legislation, historic properties continued to be destroyed.

It was President Lyndon Johnson that declared his desire for national preservation legislation. In 1966, the Special Committee on Historic Preservation issued the report, With Heritage So Rich, which highlighted the variety of historic places across the country. Lady Bird Johnson provided the foreword in which she stated, “I was dismayed to learn from reading this report that almost half of the twelve thousand structures listed in the Historic American Buildings Survey of the National Park Service have already been destroyed.” This report recommended that legislation be enacted to “affirm a strong national historic preservation policy.” President Johnson signed into law the National Historic Preservation Act on October 15, 1966. This act set forth critical policy related to historic preservation in addition to establishing the National Register of Historic Places; the State Historic Preservation Office; the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation and the Section 106 Review Process.

The report noted that Wyoming had supported preservation for 50 years! No doubt the work of Grace Raymond Hebard and numerous others who advocated for the protection of our cultural heritage. It is imperative that Wyoming citizens continue to advocate for the preservation of our historic structures. It concerns me when the agency responsible for preserving our nation’s heritage dismisses or ignores structures that are significant to Wyoming’s history. After all, the NPS should protect and interpret important landmarks of our history and work with Wyoming to insure the preservation of same.

At our November board meeting we agreed to help the Wyoming State Historic Preservation Office with the production of this year’s historic preservation poster. The Lake Hotel in Yellowstone National Park, recently listed as a National Historic Landmark, will be the subject of the poster as we celebrate its 125th anniversary. On May 13, 2016, there will be a public event celebrating her landmark status. I hope you can join us.

An Update on IRS Issues

As has been previously reported we continue to work with the IRS regarding our nonprofit status. Thanks to Senator John Barrasso we were appointed a tax advocate. After several conference calls between staff, the accountant and the tax advocate we were thrilled to find out that the IRS was going to restore our non-profit status retroactively without making us file mounds of paperwork. Unfortunately, although the IRS initially agreed to reinstate our status, it has since determined we must reapply. Special thanks to our accountant, Scott Buckingham, with Lenhart and Mason, for all of his efforts in putting together the required paperwork. We expect to submit the information prior to your getting this newsletter, and have been assured that the application will be expedited. This is beyond frustrating but thanks to input from various Society members in the know, Jamie Gronski at Senator Barrasso’s office, and Miss Gene Casper, our taxpayer advocate, we will see final results very soon. Please continue operating as you have. If we require additional information from chapters we will contact you immediately.

On the bookshelf…

The Society is thrilled to highlight the works of its members. We encourage you to shop your local bookstore first. If they don’t carry these books perhaps your inquiry will serve as an enticement to do so!

“The Small-Town Midwest” by WSHS member Julianne Couch. To research this narrative non-fiction story of the contemporary rural small town, Julianne traveled to nine communities in six states, from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains. No town she visited is larger than 4,000 people, while the smallest, Centennial, Wyoming, is just a few hundred. Through her storytelling, Julianne explains that while population loss, globalization, and large scale farming are challenges in rural America, many people have stayed put in their communities and are finding ways to sustain them. Mary Swander writes, “This book should be on the shelf of everyone who cares about the fabric of richness in rural life.” Published by University of Iowa Press.

The Top Ten postcards were SO popular that the Society has now created notecards. The set of 10 notecards w/ envelopes can be purchased by contacting headquarters at linda@wyshs.org. The notecards, perfect for touching base with friends or writing thank you notes, are $10.00 plus sales tax where applicable and shipping.

The Society is proud to announce that it has republished “Locating the Iron Trail” by Edward Gillette. First published in 1925, the book chronicles Gillette’s journey to explore and expand the American West through railroad surveys in the late 1800s. In his own words, Gillette describes the challenges as he and his crew went through what is now New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Utah, Nebraska, Wyoming and Alaska. The book can be purchased by contacting your local book stores or the Society at linda@wyshs.org. It sells for $19.95 plus sales tax where applicable and shipping.

IN MEMORY...

Condolences to the family of Mr. Donald DeLapp, a member of the Sheridan County Historical Society for many years. Mr. DeLapp, a long-time resident of Sheridan worked on his father’s dairy ranch, and at the Jersey Creamery. He retired from Decker Coal after twenty-four years of service. He died on Sunday, February 14th.

The chapter also lost Mr. Arnold Jacobson who was 98 years old when he died on January 5th. An avid fisherman, Mr. Jacobson invented the “spin-allure” in 1955, and later the “Stream-a-lure and the wobbler. In 1956 he launched Spin-A-Lure Mfg., which is still owned by the family.
